

A Message from Dr Rasha Kelej, CEO of Merck Foundation

Sustainability is a Shared Responsibility Merck Foundation Sustainability Initiative.

"We strongly believe that young people have numerous untapped capabilities. We wish to unleash such capabilities which would empower and enable them to lead the sustainable development and Green Environmental Agenda of their countries in order to adapt to the impact of climate change. For this reason, we have developed The Merck Foundation Sustainability Initiative dubbed "Sustainability is a Shared Responsibility" (SSR). The aim of this initiative is to educate, engage and empower youth and young entrepreneurs through access to information and change of mindset, in order to enrich their understanding of sustainability as well as support their new innovative businesses in the sustainability space."
